

NextWindow's Multi-touch Gesture Software Development Kit

A multi-touch gesture software development kit (SDK) is now available to independent software vendors (ISVs) and industry partners. The SDK enables independent software vendors to develop multi-touch features, removing the barrier between man and machine. The multi-touch gestures SDK enables ISVs to implement multi-touch functions to current or future applications, offering developers a more intuitive interface between man and machine. "With NextWindow's multi-touch capabilities, ISVs can move beyond the limitation of point and click", Said Al Monro, CEO of NextWindow "and offer new features such as pinch, swipe, or zoom to enlarge text, advance through photos, or adjust an image all courtesy of multi-touch".

With its multi-touch gestures SDK, Nextwindow is setting the stage for ISVs to develop new and exciting applications by allowing new ways to interface with your computer like never before. Nextwindow is the only company that provides multi-touch capabilities for large format displays with digitizer support for Microsoft's Windows XP and Vista as well as future versions of Windows 7.
